

The Queen Pops Out

Written by Yeung Hin (5B)

One day, the Queen decided to pop out of the palace in disguise. She didn't want a lot of people to see her walking in the street, so she wore an old, stretched T-shirt, scruffy jeans and big sunglasses. Everybody knew the Queen's hair was red, so she dyed it white and made herself look like an old woman. She didn't wear her jewels. She left the crown, her golden necklace and her silver ring at home. She didn't take her carriage. She walked by herself.

She went to the Zoo. She saw an elephant and many other animals. They were so cute! Then, she got hungry. She went to the restaurant to have a hamburger. It was so yummy! The queen had never eaten a hamburger before!

Suddenly, a robber with a knife came up to the Queen and said, "It's a robbery!" The Queen was so scared! Luckily, she saw the police and shouted, "Help! Help!!!" The policemen caught the robber and saved the Queen, not knowing who she was.

Finally, the Queen went back to the palace. She had had a terrible time. She didn't want to go back again.
